Hi Kim,

I have three potential alternate locations, provided the managers of each are agreeable. In my order of preference:

1. Town hall. There would be a bottleneck, but I think we could get folks through pretty easily, and have a reasonable space for voters to mark and cast ballots.
2. Safety complex. We talked about using the Fire Department bay. It has great space, but there's the question of what to do with the trucks themselves.
3. Library. The flow is terrible, and we'd have to consider how to keep the books (etc) from waking away, but I could make it work as a polling place.

I'm not convinced any space is ideal, but I also have to remember that this plan is for an emergency contingency. I don't know that I have any particular new safety concerns, but I can list those I've gathered for the school if the board is interested. It seems like the school itself has pretty firmly said no, though, so it seems to me such a list would be largely academic.

Best,
John
